December 31, 2023
To be eligible, the applicant must have an approved NCIDQ Exam application at time of application submission.

Goals for the CIDQ DEI Scholarship include:

- To provide individuals from underrepresented groups (racial and ethnic backgrounds, gender identities, sexual orientations, and/or disabilities) in the interior design community with access and opportunities to advance their careers.
- To provide the interior design community with increased access to a diverse pool of talented professionals.

Eligibility:

To be eligible, the applicant:

- must be from a historically underrepresented group; and
- MUST have an approved NCIDQ Exam application at time of application submission

Scholarship Details:

- Scholarships are available to offset exam fees only for any of the three sections of the NCIDQ Exam (does not include application fees, study materials, or other ancillary expenses).
- Scholarships will be awarded annually — and can be applied toward the spring (April) and/or fall (October) exam administrations in 2024.
- Scholarships are only redeemable for the fiscal year for which they are awarded.
- Award decisions will be made based on how clearly your ideas are expressed and how you communicate your lived and learned experiences.
- Your application will not be shared publicly without your explicit consent. Only the internal DEI Scholarship review committee will see your answers and they will not be saved for future use. If we would like to use your statement for any type of outreach or engagement, we'll discuss it with you to obtain your written permission.
